Createspace, United States, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 279 x 216 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Second in the Collection known as Twas a Misty Eve Celtic Horror Stories, this story has been written in 18th century English . One lady is haunted by a ghost, and as she is about to marry, she is informed that her father-in-law shall not think well of her if he finds plates and spoons levitating in her cottage; and this is all well and good advice-- but for that the fact that it s hard to make spoons stop floating in one s cottage, even if one s new in-laws-to-be don t think such things are respectable goings-on. Mrs. Ardall, a friend of the haunted lady, speaks of having herself witnessed supernatural events: a hopping cushion and a flying fork. Mrs. Ardall assures the dear lady that the only logical way to deal with said supernatural events is to utterly ignore them!--The lady is impressed.but still, what will she do about the ghost that is haunting her, and how shall she convince the village that she is not insane? The going opinion of the day, in that century, seems to be that if one is going insane, it s best to pretend one is not going insane, for polite society demands a certain amount of sanity to be present in everyone.and it s not polite to be blatantly insane.at least not when sitting in formal sitting rooms; thus the lady learns to frown at rattling furniture, but what will she do about the dreams that cause her to travel to the year 1700? Under the...
