Throughout life, says the writer just quoted, King Louis ordered his expenses with the exactness of a debtor and creditor account in a banker s ledger. The necessary monies for certain undertakings were assigned beforehand for each coming year. Every separate expenditure was provided for from specified sources, and each rubric had a corresponding one belonging to it, whence its expenses were to be defrayed. No Bond Street dealer could be a shrewder judge of the value of a work of art than the Bavarian prince; he was no wasteful dilettante, but brought to bear on the embellishment of his capital the keenest business instincts. He watched with unflagging attention the fluctuations in the prices of the treasures he coveted. We find him comparing Thorwaldsen s and Canova s estimates of the value of the Barberini Faun, and refusing to pay an extra scudo for the carriage of a Pg 118 statue. Yet he was not a niggard....
