The entrance to the great suspension bridge is between Walnut and Vine streets. The Post Office and Custom House are in a handsome block on Fountain square; the Masonic Temple, at the corner of Walnut and Third streets; the Public Library, on the west side of Vine street, between Sixth and Seventh streets; and the Springer Music Hall, Exposition buildings, and College of Music, on Elm street, opposite Washington Park. The Emery Arcade, which resembles the Galerie St. Hubert in Brussels, extends from Vine street to Race between Fourth and Fifth. The Hotel Emery opens therefrom. Eden Park, comprising 206 acres, contains a splendid Art Museum. This may be reached by the Eden Park horse cars, which go up the Mt. Adams (Highland House) inclined plane, or the Gilbert avenue cable-car line, the former being the more direct. Both start from Fountain square. The Zoological Garden (reached by the Main, Elm, or Vine street horse-car lines, in connection with the Elm street and Main street elevators) is one of the finest in America. There are several other parks which are essentially summer resorts. The hill section of Cincinnati, comprising Walnut Hills, Mount Auburn, etc. , contains many elegant and costly residences. Leaving Cincinnati Thursday morning, we shall proceed southward over the popular Louisville and Nashville Railroad. We continue on this line through to New Orleans, but make several stops on the way. The train crosses the Ohio on a long and...
