By Ezekiel Umo Ette

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 198 x 129 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Two young American women left the familiar behind in New Jersey to work in Africa in the 1960s. Their aim was to help the less fortunate and changed the world. They risked their lives to help others but instead found themselves in a war zone. They had thought of their volunteer work in Africa as going to teach the people, but they became social workers and advocated in a dangerous environment. They eventually escaped back to the United States along with the orphan boy that they rescued. The reader is invited to follow this engaging story as the women encounter brushes with danger. We admire their tenacity and their strong faith despite the daily dangers they face. In a world that seems lonely and full of strife and isms, the boy who has now become a man finds love and hope despite differences in origin and geography. The novel presents an example of faith and navigation through challenges. It presents stories of survival and hope in a broken world and lifts up characters that survive and thrive despite...
